

Employer/Employee First Aid: 137.5-1 Liability for providing emergency medical or first aid care - Exclusions. An employer, who in good faith provides emergency medical or first aid care without fee to any employee or any other person employed on the same project shall not, as a result of his acts or omissions, except willful and wanton misconduct on the part of such employer in providing such care, be liable to such employee or such other person to whom such care is provided for civil damages.

Any employee who in good faith provides emergency or first aid care without fee to any other employee or any other person employed on the same project shall not, as a result of his acts or omissions, except for willful or wanton misconduct on the part of such employee in providing such care, be liable to the employee or such person to whom such care is provided for civil damages.

Excluded from the operation of this Section are any employees who are licensed physicians, nurses, dentists, or other licensed health services personnel.

IDPH/REG 2/8 Nov 77

Immunity from Liability: 50/17(c) Any person, who has successfully completed a basic cardiopulmonary resuscitation training course which complies with generally recognized standards and who in good faith, not for compensation, provides emergency basic cardiopulmonary resuscitation to a person who is an apparent victim of acute cardiopulmonary insufficiency shall not, as the result of his acts or omissions in providing such resuscitation, be liable for civil damages, unless the acts or omissions constitute willful or wanton misconduct.

210 ILCS 50/17 Aug 81

Exemption From Civil Liability: 91_SB0458ham001(b)(c)(d) An individual or entity providing training in the use of automatic external defibrillation (AED's) is not liable for the civil damages as a result of any act or omission involving the use of an AED... A person owning, occupying, or managing the premises where an AED is located is not liable for civil damages as a result of any act or omission involving the use of an AED... A trained AED user is not liable for civil damages as a result of any act or omission involving the use of an AED in an emergency situation, except for willful or wanton misconduct, if the requirements of this Act are met.

LRB9100023WHdvam03 Jan 2000